

Locked Out, But Not in Jail ☺

On a recent visit to the prison, Will was delivering donated books to our prisoners. Many current authors are so kind and generously donate books to ACTION'S Bookshare program which benefits poor Christian pastors and workers in the Philippines. Dr. Harold J. Sala donated about a thousand copies of his recent book God Said That? So What? and we were able to distribute some free of charge.

Will pulled up to the main gate and unloaded the books. Our little old car has some sort of electrical problem so while he was transferring the books, his car door closed and the electric door locks clicked and locked him out, with the motor still running. A sight to see, for sure.

He went and told his problem to the prison guards who assured him that there was no problem, and it happens all the time. The solution? They went inside the jail and got a 'carnapper,' our Filipino equivalent of a carjacker. This inmate came outside, alone, with his little tools and in five minutes, Will was back in the driver's seat. Big Smiles and Happy Faces in the Philippines!
